Symphony of renewal

Tropical dinner at The Colony precedes 'Winter Memory' themed concert at Kravis.

Gotta hand it to the Palm Beach Symphony for picking "Winter Memory" as the theme for its recent performance, mostly because the pre-concert dinner took place at The Colony Pavilion, with its tropical coral and turquoise colors and its thicket of palm trees. Covered all the meteorological bases on that one, they did. Bonnie McEvee-Hunter was chairwoman of the dinner for the symphony's major donors, which took place March 29 and preceded the concert. Later, at the Kravis Center, Artistic and Music Director Ramón Tebar led the orchestra in a program by André Previn, George Gershwin and Dimitri Shostakovich, and focused on renewal and a nod to the future. Pieces included Previn's Can Spring be Far Behind?, Gershwin's An American in Paris and Shostakovich's Symphony No. 10 in E minor, Op. 93. — donnelly@pbdailynews.com Twitter: @pbdnsociety
